

Charming and Luxury Gîte in South West France

La Mouline, the name of our house, is the local name for a little watermill. Our mill was operational until 1965 and then fell into a state of disrepair. When we acquired it, it was totally wild with a varied selection of animals occupying the place. The structure of the building was sound and we restored it with architectural assistance and local craftsmen into a comfortable place where the old values are carefully preserved. The mill lies on 2  $\frac{1}{2}$  ha of land divided by three brooks in the area surrounding the house we made a pleasant garden.

The self catering gîte offers every charm sleeping 2 to 4 persons in two separate bedrooms each with its own bathroom. A large private terrace invites you outside. The kitchen is modern and well equipped; however eating out is an attractive option. Reasonably priced and refined dishes will add further enjoyment to your holiday.

The Tarn has a rich history and many museums and medieval towns are worth visiting. And a delicious countryside with its rolling hills, original farms, castles and wineries surrounds you. The towns of Albi, Gaillac, Castres, Réalmont are just a very short drive away.

The arrangement

The arrangement covers one week. During this period you will stay in our comfortable and tastefully decorated apartment. The gîte, the rural name for these lodgings, is part of a romantic watermill of which the central part is over 500 years old and very characteristic for the region.

The local markets and there is always one somewhere in the neighbourhood, provide the most wonderfully tasty sun ripened fresh fruit and vegetables; a real treat for your taste buds.
